KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

The client should not invest in this Fund if the client does not understand or is not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

- Interest Rate Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in interest rates. The purchase and sale of a debt instrument may result in profit or loss because the value of a debt instrument changes inversely with prevailing interest rates.
- Market/Price Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in the market price of securities. It is the exposure to the uncertain market value of a portfolio due to price fluctuations.
- Liquidity Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to the inability to sell or convert assets into cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a loss. These may be caused by different reasons such as trading in securities with small or few outstanding issues, absence of buyers, limited buy/sell activity or underdeveloped capital market.
- Credit/Default Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to a borrower's failure to pay principal and/or interest in a timely manner on instruments such as bonds, loans or other forms of security which the borrower issued. It also includes risk on a counterparty (a party the Trustee trades with) defaulting on a contract to deliver its obligation either in cash or securities.
- Reinvestment Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to have lower returns or earnings when maturing funds or the interest earnings of funds are reinvested.
- Country Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses arising from investments in securities issued by/in foreign countries due to political, economic and social structures of such countries. There are risks in foreign investments due to the possible internal and external conflicts, currency devaluations, foreign ownership limitations and tax increases of the foreign country which are difficult to predict but must be taken into account when making such investments.

The Trustee only transacts with reputable counterparties and invests in debt securities issued by countries and prime corporate borrowers which have undergone a rigorous accreditation and evaluation process. Regulatory exposure limits as well as the Fund's average duration are monitored regularly to ensure that exposures are managed. The Fund also employs risk management measures to monitor significant declines in the Fund's NAVPu and alert the Trustee to review current strategies and take corrective action as necessary. Furthermore, the Fund undergoes an annual review to ensure that it is equipped to fund any redemption requirement in a timely manner and at a reasonable cost during times of financial stress.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Bond market volatility spiked in early April, with the U.S. 10-year Treasury yield experiencing wide swings. It fell to 3.85% before climbing to 4.49%. A similar pattern occurred in the 10-year USD-denominated Philippine government bonds, which dropped to 5.06% before rising to 5.55%. These movements reflect market reactions to U.S. President Donald Trump's newly announced trade policy during "Liberation Day," which included a baseline 10% import tariff and much higher reciprocal tariffs for countries with which the U.S. has significant trade imbalances. Market sentiment gradually improved by mid-April after Trump announced a 90-day suspension of the reciprocal tariffs to allow time for negotiations. Notably, in the case of China, it was excluded from the suspension, with effective rates for select goods reaching 145%. China retaliated with a 125% tariff on U.S. goods, underscoring the volatility in their trade relationship. Political developments added another layer of uncertainty, as President Trump intensified his criticism of Fed Chair Jerome Powell over the lack of policy easing. While this initially sparked concerns over the Federal Reserve's independence, Trump later clarified that he had no plans to remove Powell, which eased market concerns.

On the macroeconomic front, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that headline inflation eased in March, with a 0.1% month-on-month decline. Year-on-year CPI also moderated to 2.4%, down from 2.8% in February. Meanwhile, U.S. Q1 2025 GDP contracted at an annualized rate of 0.3%. The slowdown was mainly due to a 50.9% rise in imports, which reduced GDP by 4.79%, as firms accelerated purchases ahead of anticipated tariffs. Government spending also contracted by 1.4%, contributing a negative 0.3% to GDP, while consumer spending rose by 1.8%, contributing 1.2%. By the end of the month, the U.S. Treasury yield curve steepened modestly. The 2-year yield dropped 31bps to 3.58%, while the 10-year yield fell 5bps to 4.18%. A similar steepening occurred in the local USD-denominated curve, where the 2-year yield declined 20bps to 4.29%, and the 10-year yield dropped 5bps to 5.13%.

Looking ahead to the Federal Reserve's May 7 meeting, the CME FedWatch Tool assigns a 94.3% probability that the federal funds rate will be steady at the 4.25%-4.50% range. Markets are also pricing in a 77% chance of at least two 25bps rate cuts by the end of the year. Given these mixed signals, the Fund will manage interest rate risks by maintaining a neutral duration relative to its benchmark. At the same time, the Fund will remain opportunistic in its bond acquisitions to gradually build up portfolio yield.
