KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

The client should not invest in this Fund if the client does not understand or is not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

- Interest Rate Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in interest rates. The purchase and sale of a debt instrument may result in profit or loss because the value of a debt instrument changes inversely with prevailing interest rates.
- Market/Price Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in the market price of securities. It is the exposure to the uncertain market value of a portfolio due to price fluctuations.
- Liquidity Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to the inability to sell or convert assets into cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a loss. These may be caused by different reasons such as trading in securities with small or few outstanding issues, absence of buyers, limited buy/sell activity or underdeveloped capital market.
- Credit/Default Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to a borrower's failure to pay principal and/or interest in a timely manner on instruments such as bonds, loans or other forms of security which the borrower issued. It also includes risk on a counterparty (a party the Trustee trades with) defaulting on a contract to deliver its obligation either in cash or securities.
- Reinvestment Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to have lower returns or earnings when maturing funds or the interest earnings of funds are reinvested.
- Country Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses arising from investments in securities issued by/in foreign countries due to political, economic and social structures of such countries. There are risks in foreign investments due to the possible internal and external conflicts, currency devaluations, foreign ownership limitations and tax increases of the foreign country which are difficult to predict but must be taken into account when making such investments.

The Trustee only transacts with reputable counterparties and invests in debt securities issued by countries and prime corporate borrowers which have undergone a rigorous accreditation and evaluation process. Regulatory exposure limits as well as the Fund's average duration are monitored regularly to ensure that exposures are managed. The Fund also employs risk management measures to monitor significant declines in the Fund's NAVPU and alert the Trustee to review current strategies and take corrective action as necessary. Furthermore, the Fund undergoes an annual review to ensure that it is equipped to fund any redemption requirement in a timely manner and at a reasonable cost during times of financial stress.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

U.S. President Donald Trump's trade war escalated in March. The month began with Trump increasing the import tariffs from China from 10% to 20%. In response, China imposed a 10-15% tariff on selected U.S. products. At the same time, the U.S.'s 25% tariff on imports from Canada and Mexico took effect, although some exemptions were made. Later in the month, additional measures were announced, including a 25% tariff on imports from countries purchasing Venezuelan oil and a 25% tariff on all imported automobiles.

Risk assets reacted negatively to these developments, with the MSCI All-Country World Equity Index and the S&P 500 Index falling by 4.14% and 4.18%, respectively. Unsurprisingly, demand for safe-haven assets was strong. The yield of the 2-year U.S. Treasury declined by 9.5 bps from a month ago and ended at 3.89%. Meanwhile, the 10-year yield increased by 1.8 bps to 4.23%, resulting in a steeper curve. In the Philippine context, the USD-denominated yield curve mirrored the move. The 2-year yield ended at 4.49% after declining by 6.8 bps, while the local 10-year remained at 5.18%. Shifting to monetary policy, as widely expected, the Federal Reserve kept the funds rate unchanged at the 4.25%-4.50% level in their March meeting. For 2025, the Fed's latest dot plot revealed that the median projection of two interest rate cuts was also unchanged. Looking at the CME FedWatch tool, the futures market is pricing in a 72.8% probability of seeing one rate cut by the end of the year and a 44.6% probability of seeing two. Recently, there have been increasing discussions about the risk of potential stagflation in the world's largest economy. The U.S. Federal Reserve appears to validate these expectations, as its summary of economic projections for 2025 shows a downgrade in its GDP estimate from 2.10% to 1.70%. At the same time, the central bank raised its inflation forecast, with core CPI now expected to reach 2.80%, up from the previous 2.50%. The Fed also revised its unemployment rate projections from 4.20% to 4.40%. Notably, during the same 2-day meeting, the Fed announced its decision to slow the pace of its balance sheet reduction, trimming its U.S. Treasury runoff from US$25 billion to US$5 billion. Some market participants interpreted this as a form of policy easing in itself.

Looking ahead, the current risk-off tone will likely remain as Trump looks set to impose sweeping changes on trade policies. On April 2, Trump is scheduled to unveil his reciprocal tariff updates, an event which he refers to as "Liberation Day." All these factors, along with the Fed's monetary policy response, may mean that bond investments will be well supported. Given this, the Fund will remain opportunistic in its acquisitions to gradually build-up the portfolio yield.
