KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

The client should not invest in this Fund if the client does not understand or is not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

- Interest Rate Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in interest rates. The purchase and sale of a debt instrument may result in profit or loss because the value of a debt instrument changes inversely with prevailing interest rates.
- Market/Price Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in the market price of securities. It is the exposure to the uncertain market value of a portfolio due to price fluctuations.
- Liquidity Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to the inability to sell or convert assets into cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a loss. These may be caused by different reasons such as trading in securities with small or few outstanding issues, absence of buyers, limited buy/sell activity or underdeveloped capital market.
- Credit/Default Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to a borrower's failure to pay principal and/or interest in a timely manner on instruments such as bonds, loans or other forms of security which the borrower issued. It also includes risk on a counterparty (a party the Trustee trades with) defaulting on a contract to deliver its obligation either in cash or securities.
- Reinvestment Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to have lower returns or earnings when maturing funds or the interest earnings of funds are reinvested.
- Country Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses arising from investments in securities issued by/in foreign countries due to political, economic and social structures of such countries. There are risks in foreign investments due to the possible internal and external conflicts, currency devaluations, foreign ownership limitations and tax increases of the foreign country which are difficult to predict but must be taken into account when making such investments.

The Trustee only transacts with reputable counterparties and invests in debt securities issued by countries and prime corporate borrowers which have undergone a rigorous accreditation and evaluation process. Regulatory exposure limits as well as the Fund's average duration are monitored regularly to ensure that exposures are managed. The Fund also employs risk management measures to monitor significant declines in the Fund's NAVPU and alert the Trustee to review current strategies and take corrective action as necessary. Furthermore, the Fund undergoes an annual review to ensure that it is equipped to fund any redemption requirement in a timely manner and at a reasonable cost during times of financial stress.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market volatility eased in May. The MOVE Index, which measures interest rate volatility, declined to 92 from as high as 139 the previous month. Developments in trade policy largely drove this decline. Following the 90-day suspension of the U.S.'s reciprocal tariffs on major trading partners (excluding China) in April, the U.S. and China agreed to a temporary truce. As part of the deal, the U.S. reduced tariffs on Chinese goods from 145% to 30%, while China lowered its tariffs from 125% to 10%. The easing of trade tensions led to a rally in risk assets and reduced demand for safe-haven instruments such as U.S. treasuries. In addition, U.S. treasuries were further pressured as Moody's downgraded the U.S. credit rating from Aaa to Aa1, citing concerns over the sustainability of the federal budget deficit and rising interest costs. The credit rating agency noted that at the current pace of taxation and spending, the U.S. budget deficit could widen to 9% of GDP by 2035, up from 6.40% in 2024. Meanwhile, debt-to-GDP is projected to reach 134%, up from last year's 98%. The passage of a new fiscal package in the House of Representatives referred to as "One Big Beautiful Bill," which includes tax cuts and new spending initiatives, added to these concerns and contributed to the rise in U.S. yields. The yield on 2-year U.S. Treasuries rose by 31 basis points to 3.89%, while the 10-year yield climbed 22 basis points to 4.41%. The Philippine USD-denominated curve followed a similar move, with the 2-year yield rising by 4 basis points to 4.33% and the 10-year yield increasing by 3 basis points to 5.16%.

On the monetary policy front, the Federal Reserve kept policy rates unchanged at 4.25%-4.50% during their May 7 meeting, a widely anticipated decision by the market. The Fed cited a resilient labor market alongside growing uncertainty around the economic outlook and inflation, which influenced the decision. Fed Chair Jerome Powell emphasized the need for a flexible and data-dependent approach. Later in the month, the U.S. Personal Consumption Expenditures Index, the Fed's preferred inflation gauge, showed signs of easing. Headline inflation slowed to 2.1% in April, while core inflation settled at 2.5%, both in line with expectations. The following policy meeting is scheduled for June 17-18, with markets still expecting no rate changes. Based on the CME FedWatch tool, there is currently around a 70% probability that the Fed will cut rates by 50 basis points before the end of the year, starting either in September or October.

Given the current backdrop, the Fund will manage interest rate risks by maintaining a neutral duration relative to its benchmark. At the same time, the Fund will remain opportunistic in its bond acquisitions to gradually build up portfolio yield.
